To whom it may concern,

I believe that all restrictions must be removed in order to open Canada's door to the digital future. The amount that we pay in Canada for cell phones, home phones, internet and anything data related is ridiculously high. I personally have already noticed a change since new players such as Wind Mobile have made their way into the market. I feel that it only makes sense to remove or at the very least greatly reduce the current restrictions in the telecom act. In the end the people will decide what is best for them.

Thank you,
