
Subject: FW: Question on AWS auction

Importance: High

CRA International

Is it possible for the same consulting company to advise two or more bidders participating in the AWS auction assuming the company assigns personnel to different teams and sets up a firewall so that teams do not communicate among each other on topics related to the auction? Does Industry Canada have a policy with respect to what kind of advisory services are permissible to provide to two bidders participating in the same auction?