Certification Mark Standard

The use of the certification mark indicates that the accounting and finance services are rendered by a person whose competency has been demonstrated by successful completion of the National Advanced Certificate in Accounting and Finance examination. Chartered Professional Accountants of Canada uses the Angoff method to set the passing standard for the National Advanced Certificate in Accounting and Finance examination. The Angoff method uses a panel of subject matter experts to develop a unique minimum passing score that a person must achieve in the examination in order to earn the CACF certificate. A description of the Angoff method to determine the unique minimum passing score is available for the public within the Canadian Intellectual Property Office. CACF is the acronym for "Certification avancée en comptabilité et finance", and the French version of ACAF. In order to be eligible to write the National Advanced Certificate in Accounting and Finance examination, a person must have successfully completed the Advanced Accounting and Finance curriculum, delivered by accredited post-secondary institutions in the field of accounting and finance, comprised of 11 courses in total, which includes six technical courses: Advanced Financial Reporting, Corporate Finance, Audit and Assurance, Taxation, Intermediate Management Accounting, Information Technology, and five applied courses to be selected from the following: Ethics and Workplace Skills, Accounting Software Application, Business Applications, Applied External Audit, Applied Personal and Corporate Taxation, Applied Corporate Finance, Public Sector Financial Management Practice, and Not-for Profit Accounting. Each of the courses has a minimum of six to eight weeks of study, followed by a preparatory study week and a final examination, with the exception of the course in Accounting Software Application, which requires the completion of an entirely self-paced learning component and an online final exam. The use of the certification mark also indicates that the person rendering the accounting and financial services adheres to standards of professional conduct adopted for users of the certification mark and governed by the Chartered Professional Accountants of Canada. The full details of the certification standard, including a detailed list of qualifying courses and participating accredited post-secondary institutions across Canada are available for the public within the Canadian Intellectual Property Office. The applicant is not engaged in the manufacture, sale, leasing or hiring of goods or the performance of services such as those listed in the application.
